Recognizing the Red Flags of Identity Theft

Identity theft occurs when fraud is committed using the identifying information of another person. To encourage the detection, prevention, and mitigation of identity theft at UConn and UConn Health, and to support compliance with the Red Flags Rule regulations, the University of Connecticut established a Red Flags Program. This program provides guidance on identifying and responding to Red Flag activity.

An employee who identifies a “red flag” must immediately bring it to the attention of their supervisor. If it is determined that a situation of identity theft has occurred, the Division or Department Head should immediately contact the Office of Privacy Protection & Management to inform them of the matter.

Click here to learn more about the University’s Red Flags Program.

“Red Flag” means “a pattern, practice, or specific activity that indicates the possible existence of Identity Theft.”

Need Further Assistance?

Office of Privacy Protection & Management

UConn - 860-486-3256
UConn Health - 860-679-7226
https://privacy.uconn.edu/