The University of Connecticut and UConn Health (Collectively "UConn") are dedicated to the highest standard of ethical and professional conduct in its research, education, clinical service, and public service activities. Each individual associated with UConn is expected to conduct themselves according to this standard and ensure that their actions comply with UConn policies and relevant laws. To further this end, UConn welcomes and encourages good-faith reporting of compliance concerns and/or seeking guidance regarding compliance issues.

Reporting Compliance Concerns

While employees are always encouraged to discuss concerns or potential compliance issues with their supervisors and managers, we recognize that may not be comfortable for all. Therefore, UConn and UConn Health community members are encouraged to contact the Office of University Compliance directly, or to utilize the UConn Reportline.

Non-Retaliation Policy

The University strictly prohibits retaliation against any individual who reports a concern in good faith, participates in the investigation of alleged violations of law or policy, or who assists someone in doing so.

The Non-retaliation Policy does not protect individuals who make a report that is knowingly false and/or made with malicious intent, otherwise referred to a "bad faith report".
